Detailed Action

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 USC 102(e) as being anticipated by Malik et al., (US Patent No. 6842782).
3. Regarding claim 1, Malik teaches a computer-implemented method comprising:
 - receiving a web page (Malik, col.6, l.1-4);
 - receiving a selection of data to extract from the web page (Malik, col.6, l.50-53);
 - generating a rule for the selected data, the rule to include the location of the data selected (Malik, col.5, l.8-10); and
 - storing the rule in a rules file for the web page (Malik, col.5, l.10-11).
4. Regarding claim 2, Malik further discloses the computer-implemented method of claim 1, wherein the location of the data selected comprises a row, a column and the length of the data. (Malik, col.7, l.34-36, & Fig. 2)

5. Regarding claim 3, Malik further discloses the computer-implemented method of claim 1, wherein the web page is from a page for an account on a web site (Malik, col. 7, l.29-30, l.35-37).
6. Regarding claim 4, Malik further discloses the computer-implemented method of claim 3, wherein the web page is a page indicating that a user is logged into the account on the web site (Malik, col. 7, l.43, 53-56).
7. Regarding claim 5, Malik further discloses the computer-implemented method of claim 1, wherein the rules file comprises a number of rules that are incorporated into a logging in of a number of different users for a number of different accounts on the web site (Malik, Fig.2, col. 7, l.60-67).
8. Regarding claim 6, Malik further discloses a computer-implemented method comprising:
 - receiving a request for logins into at least two different online accounts for a user across a number of web sites (Malik, col. 7, l.56-58);
 - performing logins for the at least two different online accounts for the user, wherein the logins are based on a set of instructions, the instructions to include a number of requests that are associated to a number of responses received from the web site during the logins (Malik, col.8, l.2-6);
 - receiving account data from the at least two different online accounts (Malik, col.7, l.5-17); and

- extracting portions of the account data based on rules associated with the account data (Malik, fig.3, col.11, l. 62-67).

9. Regarding claim 7, Malik further discloses a computer-implemented method of claim 6, comprising displaying the portions of the account data for the at least two different online accounts (Malik, col.12, l. 1-4).
10. Regarding claim 8, Malik further discloses a computer-implemented method of claim 6, wherein the rules file that can be incorporated into performing logins of a number of different users for a number of different accounts on the web site (Malik, col.7, l.47-53).
11. Regarding claim 9, Malik further discloses a computer-implemented method of claim 6, comprising integrating authentication data for the user into at least one instruction (Malik, col.11, l.8-9).
12. Regarding claim 10, Malik further discloses a computer-implemented method of claim 9, wherein integrating the authentication data for the user into the at least one instruction comprises replacing, within the at least one integrated instruction, generic variable names associated with a set of credentials comprising the authentication data for the account (Malik, col.11, l.28-40).
13. Regarding claims 11-20 have similar limitations as claims 1-10.
Therefore, Claims 11-20 are rejected for the same reasons set forth in the rejection of claims 1-10.
